The implied accusation brought Campbell forward in his chair, in a swift burst of anger.

"Isn't it a fact, Mr. Keith, that in spite of your liberal allowance and income, your wife was always pressed for funds?"

Mortimer Keith looked startled. "How could you guess that, Rankin as you have no harm in answer."

"How could you guess that, Rankin saw no harm in answer."

"How could you guess that, Rankin saw no harm in answer."

"So you know when that happened?" the detective observed drily. "And why not?" his visitor demanded wrathfully. "It's in all the papers that she died between half-past two and three o'clock." "Well, what about the lawyers' offices?" Rankin challenged. "You were heard to cry out, 'Oh, my God!' and 'You fool! That didn't mean very pleasant news.
